

WARNER BROTHER STUDIOS

by Brianna Dun

Are you interested in film or seeing the sets of where films were made? You should try visiting Warner Brother Studios for a tour! Warner Brother Studios Tour is a guided walk through tour of one of the oldest studios located in Los Angeles, California. The tour includes a 1 hour guided tour and 2 hours for self guided.

Things you may see during your tour are stage 48, Hogwarts Express, Central Perk, Hollywood made here, Dumbledore's Tower, Storytelling Showcase, the set of Gilmore girls, and many other things.

Throughout the tour you can see the sets where films were made and be told how they filmed it. The tour guides on the tour would tell you what the film directors did for the show/movie and go into details about each set, especially when you ask questions! Asking questions throughout the tour would not only help the tour guide understand what you're interested in and answer questions but also you yourself would be more informed and walk out knowing so many new things you didn't know before.

On November 23, 2024, I went to Warner Brothers Studio for a tour on a field trip with my school. It made me interested in going because it talks so much about film and the industry it goes into which made me want to know more. Especially since I'm already big in film. When we went on the tour we first watched a short film that was maybe 2-5 minutes long then we got our tour guides. They took us each row by row and we all got in our tour guide assigned carts. We saw some of the sets where shows/movies were filmed and the tour guides explained what they do to make things look like they do in the films. We then went to stage 48 and then ate at Central Perk. After we ate we took another cart to another part of the stage and we saw all the DC costumes, cars, and things of DC and also saw all of the Harry Potter things, which can be known as Hogwarts Express.

My favorite part of the tour was seeing the different parts of DC and the BatMobile in person. I also loved seeing the set of Gilmore Girls too since I watched the whole series and it was nice seeing it in person. The Warner Brothers Studio tour is a wonderful place to tour, and I would highly recommend going at least once.
