

A Night In California

by Brianna Dun

As I go on late night drives with my favorite person
The city starts to come alive
Oh how adoring it is
To feel the sweet warm winds start to arise
As we head to the shore late at night

The smell of the beach soothes me
The briny and salty smell in the air from the ocean
Seems to refresh me
As I step into the sand with notion
The gritty, soft feeling of the sand underneath me

The fresh sounds of the waves
The ocean seems to call me
My feet starts to craves
The vast coolness of the water sea
As the sensation of eternity comes before me

The breeze walk back to the car with my favorite person
The starry skies and city lights
Oh how lovely it is
To feel the certainty arise
As we head back late at night
